Teacher's feedback

The analysis of teacher feedback on the curriculum indicates a generally positive perception of its effectiveness in preparing students for both higher studies and career readiness, as well as in facing competitiveness. Teachers also acknowledge the value of projects in improving students' knowledge base and the availability of relevant reading materials. Furthermore, the timely conduct of exams and the curriculum's contribution to societal development were viewed positively. Additionally, efforts will be made to incorporate more recent research trends and emerging topics into project-based learning experiences to ensure students are well-equipped for the evolving demands of their respective fields.

Action taken report

In response to teacher feedback, the college has undertaken several actions to enhance the curriculum's effectiveness. This includes updating skills to deliver the content to better prepare students for higher studies and career readiness, implementing strategies to address competitiveness, and providing additional support for projects aligned with recent research trends. Efforts have also been made to improve the availability of reading materials, streamline exam processes, and enhance the curriculum's contribution to societal development through interdisciplinary initiatives. These actions reflect the college's commitment to continuous improvement and ensuring the curriculum remains relevant and impactful for students and society alike.
