- They will learn to interact with different people and learn their problems.

- There were few, who were willing to work, but had no work and took shelter at the station and often begged to survive. Two women were thrown out of their houses and were forced to beg.

Village Learning Centres

- Our college TTWRDC (M) Kamareddy started a unique programme called 'Village Learning Centres', during corona pandemic.
- Education was most affected area during the pandemic period and among the students, it was the poorest who suffered the most.
- While, the students of urban areas, and the middle classes had access to online classes and other online programmes to keep updated with their education, the students from lower income levels specially in the rural areas were devoid of any source to continue their education.

Objectives

- To provide uninterrupted education to the students coming from rural background, marginal sections, low income groups.
- To keep children and student teachers engaged in effective learning process during the serious period of covid 19.
- To ensure the children and student teachers learn about safe and secure measures to keep themselves away from being affected by covid 19.

Practice

- The best students from each class were selected by the respective housemasters and trained for the programme through online mode using whatsapp chat.
- Topics and timetables are designed and distributed to the students with general suggestions to be implemented during the classes.
- Each student could gather the children from their neighbourhood and classes are conducted on a daily basis preferably in the evening time.

Problems encountered and resources required

- The programme encountered problems at the initial stages. The villages were not willing to send their children to the village learning centres.
- However with the help of the village head and other important people of the village the parents started sending their students to the village learning centres.
- Some students were able to use the classrooms of the government schools with the permission of village head and the school officials. Others had to conduct these VLCs in and around their homes.

Success

- This programme kept the rural children updated with their education by encouraging them to take daily classes and practice sessions.
- A total of 18 VLCs were successfully carried on and 166 students of the thandas benefitted from this programme.
- Our student-teachers got a first-hand experience of teaching on a regular basis which enhanced their teaching skills and their confidence levels.
- This programme was also covered in the newspapers and encouraged other people to take up such measures to ensure that the students from lower income group and marginal section of the society to access to uninterrupted education during the pandemic period

Village Learning Centre at Dubba Thanda

- Dubba Thanda in Gandhari Mandal of Kamareddy district.
