IN DEBAT STUDENTS' CONVERSATION

Conversation 1: The Importance of Student Involvement

GROUP:1 Hey, did you register to vote in the upcoming election?

GROUP:2 Not yet. I'm not sure if it really makes a difference.

GROUP:1 Of course, it does! Our votes can shape the future of our country. We have the power to choose leaders who will address issues important to us, like education, climate change, and social justice.

GROUP:2 But isn't politics just a mess? It feels like nothing ever changes no matter who's in charge.

GROUP:1 That's why it's even more important for us to get involved. If we want to see change, we have to be a part of the process. Plus, there are local elections where our votes can have a direct impact on our community.

GROUP:2 You make a good point. I guess I should look into registering after all.

Conversation 2: Student Activism and Engagement

GROUP:1 Did you hear about the rally happening downtown next week?

GROUP:2 Yeah, I saw the event on social media. What's it about?

GROUP:1 It's a protest against the proposed budget cuts to education funding. I think we should go and show our support.

GROUP:2 Absolutely! Education is a right, not a privilege. It's important for us to stand up for our schools and future generations.

GROUP:1 I agree. Plus, it's a chance for us to make our voices heard and demand accountability from our elected officials.

GROUP:2 Definitely. Let's spread the word and get as many people to join us as possible.

Conversation 3: Empowering Peers to Vote

GROUP:1 Have you thought about who you're voting for in the student council elections?

GROUP:2 Not really. I haven't been following the candidates or their platforms.

GROUP1:It's important to do some research and make an informed decision. These are the students who will represent us and advocate for our interests.

GROUP2: I guess you're right. Where can I find more information about the candidates?

GROUP1: The student council website should have profiles and information about each candidate. And don't forget to attend the debates to hear directly from them.

GROUP2:Thanks for the advice. I'll make sure to do my homework before casting my vote

CONCLUSION:

In these conversations, students discuss the significance of their involvement in elections, the power of activism and engagement, and the importance of informed decision-making when participating in the democratic process. Through dialogue and mutual encouragement, they inspire each other to take an active role in shaping the future of their communities and society.
